LOVE & HATE

IN CONTEMPORARY CLINICAL PRACTICE

LEWIS ARON, PH.D.

•
GALIT ATLAS, PH.D.

Saturday, November 25, 2017

10:00 a.m. – 4:00 p.m.

Innis Town Hall Theatre, 2 Sussex Ave., Toronto, M5S 1J5

About The Day

The Enigma of Desire ~ Galit Atlas

Galit Atlas discusses the subjects of sex and desire and explores the Enigmatic and the Pragmatic aspects of sexuality, longing, sexual inhibition and creativity. She will present narratives, therapeutic tales which illustrate both the analyst's and patient's erotic desires and anxieties, and the ways these interact and emerge in the consulting room.

Fluctuations of Identity and Shifting Self-States ~ Lewis Aron

Lewis Aron will explore therapists' fluctuations in identity and self-states, and their "dramatization" with patients, including expressions of "hate in the countertransference." He will focus on the clinical contributions of Harold Searles, an innovative master clinician who was a forerunner of contemporary relational work. Videos of Searles clinical interviews will be used to facilitate discussion.

Learning Objectives

Participants will learn to:

- Explain why contemporary psychoanalysis emphasizes "something more than interpretation";
- Describe how attending to one's own fluctuations in identity or self-states can be used clinically;
- Describe two of the contributions of Harold Searles;
- Describe two objections to Searles' clinical approach;
- Describe two of the complications and ways of managing the erotic transference and countertransference;
- Describe two implications of infant research for adult treatment.
